The FreeLand Experience

FreeLand is designed to promote understanding and cooperation among students of diverse racial, religious, and ethnic backgrounds. By helping students understand and appreciate the unique difference among people, they are better able to assume leadership roles in our increasingly multicultural society. Alumni hold key positions in government, academia, and business organizations.

Students selected as FreeLand delegates live together for a week in a camp setting. To date, more than 2,000 delegates have shared ideas, feelings, and their unique individuality. They learn to better understand themselves and others as they experience the rich diversity of their cultural backgrounds.
